Watercolor for Little Ones

An introduction to the wonders of watercolor for the youngest grade schoolers. Through simple exercises that present basic elements of painting such as line, color, shape, texture and value students will experience several painting techniques. Though the focus will be on creativity and experimentation, they will learn about color mixing, wet on wet, layering and more. The students will create a still life of a vase filled with flowers.

Color my Feelings - Exploring Emotions Through Watercolor

Children will be taught how colors connect to our moods and emotions. Through images brought by the artist and peer discussion, students will explore the way this affects the world around them and the choices they make in their art. During the session the students will make a colorful emotion chart.

Artists in Depth

Each of these artists helped shape the genre and culture of our time. Students will learn about their history, careers and the impacts they made. They will then create artwork that reflects the style and materials of the artist. Each project is mixed media collage, focusing on the featured artists' mediums. Choose an artist, or do a whole series.

Frida Kahlo- Mexican artist known for her soul bearing self portraits and multifaceted life. Students will make a self portrait.

Jean-Michel Basquiat- Influential Black American artist that changed the face of contemporary art. Students will create an homage to someone they care about or admire.

Jaune Quick-to-See Smith - Native American artist whose expressionistic art explores Indigenous histories, identities, and foundational myths. Students will create an image that conveys a statement of their choice. They can choose a complaint, hope, memory, ect.
